LEADENHALL CAPITAL PARTNERS GROWS LIFE STRATEGIES AUM BY OVER US$600m IN SECOND HALF 2018

London – 25th October 2018

Leadenhall Capital Partners has raised over US$600m during the 2nd half of 2018 year so far for its life strategies following strong investor demand for exposure to the asset class through an experienced manager with a proven and established track record. Much of the new capital has been raised to take advantage of a healthy supply of private transactions in the life sector.

Dan Knipe, Partner & Head of Life Investments said: "Leadenhall's solution based approach and our long-standing commitment to the life and health sector continues to provide a key competitive advantage for us in originating investment opportunities in private markets to satisfy investor appetite for biometric and behavioural risks"

The capital raised brings the London-based firm's life asset base to over US$2.5bn. Investments will be made across life embedded value, health, lapse risks and other opportunities of a similar nature.

Lorenzo Volpi, Partner & Head of Business Development said: "Investors continue to look for alternative products offering diversifying sources of yield; the increased capital demand of life insurers driven by liquidity requirements and enhanced regulations, like Solvency II, is providing a very interesting investment opportunity".

Leadenhall offers life investment vehicles that range from tailored segregated managed accounts to open ended and closed ended funds. The investor base is institutional, with interest from pension funds around the globe continuing to be significant. "Some of these groups of investors would prefer not to have longevity risk within their life portfolios but this is not universal and Leadenhall's life franchise caters for investor appetites across the risk and return spectrum" continued Mr. Volpi.
